

Dominika Zięba holds a Master's degree in Political Science and has completed her PhD studies at the University of Rzeszow in 2024. She is currently in the process of obtaining her PhD degree in the discipline of Political Science and Public Administration. Her research interests focus on the functioning of political institutions, particularly local government institutions. Additionally, she is interested in citizen participation in the public decision-making process and the protection of cultural heritage. Since 2017, she has been a local government employee at Rzeszow City Hall, where her responsibilities include implementing the municipality's tasks related to urban regeneration and heritage preservation. Her practical experience in public administration complements her academic pursuits, allowing her to engage deeply with the theoretical aspects of her research and apply them to real-world situations.