

Maša Marochini Zrinski is an Associate professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Rijeka, Department for Theory of Law and State, Philosophy of Law, Human Rights and Public Policy. From October 2023 she is head of the Department for Human Rights. Maša Marochini Zrinski holds a PhD in Law from University of Dundee, Scotland, UK. Her main responsibilities at the Faculty of Law, Rijeka include teaching graduate courses Theory of Law and State, European Convention on Human Rights and International Law of Human Rights, as well as various postgraduate courses on European Convention on Human Rights and doctoral course on Methodology of Law as well as ERASMUS courses. She is also academic coach for students participating at the Moot Court Competition before the ECHR (Regional competition) and a member of the Croatian Academy of Legal Sciences. She is also main organiser and a lecturer at Summer School of Human Rights in Novi Vinodolski, Croatia as well as the organiser of the Conference on the impact of the European Convention on Human Rights on Croatian legal system. Main areas of her scientific interest include Human Rights Law, Interpretation of Law and Theory of Law. She participated in numerous international and national conferences and published various articles in the Law area (ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-8441-2277>).