

Maciel Walkowski, Prof. dr hab., Faculty of Political Science and Journalism AMU Poznan, Poland. Specialises in international economic relations and European integration issues, especially in research on: globalisation processes and economic regionalisation, global problems, global economic and financial security, transnational corporations activity (TNC's), South and East Asia region development as well as socio-economic development of the European Union, monetary integration in the Euro Area, the EU Common Agricultural Policy and social and economic development policy in Poland. Author and editor of many scientific publications published in Polish, English and German, as well as encyclopedic entries. Active participant of plenty national and international scientific conferences and congresses organised at home and abroad (papers, panels moderation, public debates participations etc). Organiser or co-organiser of open lectures, professional trainings, courses and dozens of students conferences. Participant in international scientific exchange within and international scientific internships, among others, at universities in Spain, Germany, Japan, Iceland, Belgium, Italy, Turkey, Cyprus, North Cyprus, Czech Republic, Lithuania, Serbia, Russia and Kazakhstan. Executor or main executor of several significant national and international grants and other scientific and research projects. Under his guidance, the Jean Monnet Chair EU

DYNAMICUS JM Chair project: European Union - Economic Development, Young Europeans and Innovations in Crisis Overcoming and Union's Sustainability was active from 2016 to 2019. Participant and coordinator of the prestigious research grant implemented at the UAM in Poznan: EU-Jean Monnet Center of Excellence EU EX/ACT 2018-2021 (EU external actions in the contested global order - (In)coherence, (dis)continuity, resilience). Until 2015 a member of the Department of International Economics at the Faculty of Political Science and Journalism of the Adam Mickiewicz University. Since 2015 he has been Head of the Department of Social and Economic Policy. From 2016 until 2024, he has held the position of Vice-Dean for Science at this Faculty.