

Nataliia Nechaieva-Yuriichuk is a scientist, As. Prof. of the Department of Political Science and Public Administration of Yuriy Fed'kovych Chernivtsi National University. Fields of research include the political history of the 20th century, issues of regional and international security, information security, ethnopolitical relations, primarily in the post-Soviet space, European integration, and modern EU development strategies. She started her academic career in 2000. PhD in World History. Nataliia has experience in media, the non-governmental sector, and the academic environment. Since 2010, she has been working at Yuriy Fedkovych Chernivtsi National University. She was a visiting lecturer at the University of Passau (Germany) in 2015, 2016, 2018, and 2023, and at the Pedagogical University of Ludwigsburg (Germany) in the last years. Participant of the ERASMUS+ program (Austria, Germany, Greece, Poland). More than 25 years of experience in higher education and scientific research. Nataliia Nechaieva-Yuriichuk has experience in public activities, particularly in adult education, implementation of scientific research, and cultural and social projects. Among them are projects aimed at studying public opinion regarding Ukraine's integration into NATO, the state of development of civil society in Ukraine, developing proposals for managing the information space of the region, and others. Nataliia is a regional coordinator of social projects aimed at supporting IDP women in 2021, 2022, and 2023. Nataliia is also a regional coordinator of the National Platform for Sustainability and Cohesion in Chernivtsi Region. Nataliia Nechaieva-Yuriichuk is the author of more than 90 scientific publications in Ukraine, Moldova, Germany, Poland, Romania, Turkey, and other countries.