

Remigiusz Rosicki. He holds a postdoctoral degree (habilitation) in social sciences from Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań and has also earned dual doctorates in political science and law. He has advanced his academic and research interests by completing various postgraduate studies, including: Substantive Criminal Law and Procedural Criminal Law (with a focus on new technologies), Commercial Law, and Fiscal and Economic Criminal Law. His research focuses on issues such as criminal policy and law, energy policy and law, the legal assessment of technology, international law, and comparative research methodology.